

Task Force on Ensuring Access in Vulnerable Communities

Rural Chartbook

The task force defined a vulnerable community as a population that, due to their individual circumstances, is much more likely to be in poor health and have disabling conditions. They then worked to identify the characteristics and parameters that would identify such vulnerable rural and urban communities. In doing so, they relied upon personal experiences, as well as an analysis of financial data and other information from qualitative sources related to vulnerable rural and urban communities. This document contains metrics related to rural communities and the hospitals that serve them. For the full report, visit www.aha.org/ensuringaccess.
